Personal Notes.

J. L. Burch and daughter, Miss Maggie, of Kirk, were called to Brandenburg Saturday to see his sister Mrs. Thos. Greenwood, who is very sick.
Miss Laura Davis, of Louisville, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Henry Davis, at Basin Springs, returned home Saturday.
Middleton Barwell and Clinton Quin, of Louisville, who have resided here, left Monday for the east to enter the Alexandria Episcopal Seminary for a three years' course.
Miss Kate Graham Dittie returned to her home at Brandenburg Monday, after a three months' tour through the east in a private car with a school master and her parents.

Given Up to Die.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost sleep and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and was practically given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle was entirely cured." Solt by A. K. Fisher.

Petitions For Postoffices.

Petitions asking for the establishment of a postoffice at Hites Run and one at a point near Hites Run old mill have been forwarded to the postoffice department at Washington.

If a postoffice for Hites Run is secured it will be kept by L. Beauchamp, who has just completed his store home and will soon be selling goods. If secured for the other place, H. J. Roberts will be in charge, his home being several miles from Hites Run. In the petition for the office near Hites Run it is asked that the office be named "Mike." Postmaster Rowland, of the local office, has suggested that the other office be called "Pike," out it is probable that it will be known as the Hites Run postoffice.

The opinion has been expressed that these two offices, if secured, will take the place, in a measure, of the proposed rural free delivery route between Cloverport and Hardinsburg, via Mattingly, a petition for which has been pending for two years and towards the establishment of which nothing has been done, as far as known here.

Dr. Hardaway's Appointments.

Dr. A. M. Hardaway will be at Stephenson Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 25, 26 and 27, and at Union Star Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 28, 29 and 30, for the practice of dentistry.

During the week of October 2 to 9 Dr. Hardaway will be at Big Spring.

Misses Ella Smith and Sadie Dugree returned Sunday to Jeffersonville, after a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hall.

Bad Blood

Is responsible for most of the diseases and ailments of the human system. It seriously affects every organ and function, causes catarrh, dyspepsia, rheumatism, weak, tired, languid feelings and worse troubles. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla which purifies and enriches the blood as nothing else can. For testimonials of remarkable cures read for Book on the Blood, No. 3. C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

CLARK CASES ARE AT LAST SETTLED.

The First Attaching Creditors On Poultry Swindler's Property to Be Paid-Others to Get Nothing.

Hardinsburg, Ky., Sept. 19.—(Special.)—The petition of W. C. Moorman, E. F. Lyons and Wilson & Co., to force C. M. Clark & Co. into bankruptcy, has been dismissed with costs, by Judge Evans in the Federal Court. The effect of this decision is, that there will be no pro rata distribution of the proceeds of the attached goods of C. M. Clark & Co., but that the first attaching creditors, whose attachments are sustained, will receive their debts in full until the fund now in the circuit court, amounting to $1,700, is exhausted. The other creditors will receive nothing. The parties who fought and won the case in the Federal Court are Pete Sheeran Bros. & Co., First State Bank, B. F. Beard & Co., and Joe Tait. Their attorneys were Morris Eskridge, Greg Brown and Jno. P. Haswell, Jr.

Mrs. Linda Dittie Dead.

Mrs. Linda Dittie died at her home in Jefferson county Monday. She was the wife of the late James Dittie.

CASTORIA.

The Kind You Have Always Bought
Dr. Walker, Custer, Oct. 3-4-5.
Dr. W. A. Walker, of Hardinsburg, will be at Custer October 3-4-5 to do dental work.

Hensley Resigns Position.

The town of Stanley is again without a peace officer. W. W. Hensley, who has been the marshal of the town since last April, has resigned. Hensley resigned a few days after he was acquitted for the killing of Joe Sapp, but the town trustees refused to accept his resignation. It is understood that Hensley's people were anxious for him to give up the office. On Saturday he again offered his resignation and was told that if he took off his badge and declared he would no longer serve as marshal, Tuesday's Owensboro Messenger.

Short Hardinsburg News Notes.

Hardinsburg, Ky., Sept. 19.—(Special.)—The County Board of Election Commissioners will meet here today, to select the election officers who will act during the coming year.

Prof. Collins has organized a literary society composed of the students of the high school. The society meets every Friday evening. The public generally is invited to attend.

Leo Greenwell, representing N. M. Sanders, commission merchant, of Louisville, has opened a produce store here, and will pay cash for poultry, eggs, etc. Mr. Greenwell is a hustling young man and will make a success of the business.

John Skillman has accepted a position with the Farmers' Bank. He is a young man of ability and promise, who will develop into a capable business man.

Fall Races, Sept. 16-October 7.

$2.05 round trip, Cloverport to Louisville and return, on Sept. 17 to 20, inclusive, good returning 3 days from date of sale. Also Oct. 1 to 9, inclusive, good returning Oct. 9.

Rev. Rushing's Farewell Sermon.

Rev. J. T. Rushing, presiding elder of the Breckinridge circuit, held his farewell conference, Methodist Episcopal church, South, preached his farewell sermon at Settle Memorial church, at Owensboro, Sunday night. Because of the time limit having expired he will be transferred to another field at the conference, which will meet at Litchfield on September 27. Rev. Mr. Rushing is a man of much more than ordinary ability and has made himself very useful and popular in this city and the district, and the people at large, as well as those of his own denomination, will regret to lose him. Dr. R. W. Browder, one of the most able presiding elders in the conference, is being spoken of as a successor to Mr. Rushing, though there is no unanimity of sentiment in regard to this matter among the Methodists of the district.

Kirk Store Loses $360 to Robbers; Fourth Time Burglarized; No Clew.

Hardinsburg, Ky., Sept. 19.—(Special.)—Pete Sheeran Bros. & Co.'s store, at Kirk, was robbed of $360 worth of goods last Wednesday night. The goods taken consisted mostly of jewelry and cutlery. About $400 worth of stamps was also stolen. The post office is kept in the store house. An entrance was effected by the thieves through the transom over the front door. All the doors were found open or unlocked the next morning.

Thursday night bloodhounds from Louisville, under charge of expert men, came down to track the robbers.

New Business in Town.

Few drugists in towns of Cloverport's size have as fine an optical department as Short & Haynes have fitted up in a corner of their drug store. It is not only attractively appointed but up-to-date in every respect and a credit to this enterprising firm. The stock of glasses carried by Short & Haynes is very large. They have the most modern instruments for testing the eyes and one of the latest and most handsome trial cases made. They guarantee every glass they sell. On a day's notice they have special prescription lens ground in Chicago. Mr. Short has just taken a special course in optics and feels he is in a position to do all kinds of first-class work in this line. By means of their large assortment of glasses, their fine equipment and Mr. Short's ability as an optician, Messrs. Haynes and Short are able to fit any kind of eye.

Cured of Bright's Disease.

Geo. A. Sherman, Lisbon Red Mills, Lawrence Co., N. Y., writes: "I had kidney disease for many years and had been treated by physicians for twelve years; had taken a well known kidney medicine and other remedies that were recommended but got no relief until I began using Foley's Kidney Cure. The first half bottle relieved me and four bottles have cured me of this terrible disease. Before I began taking Foley's Kidney Cure I had to make water about every fifteen minutes, day and night, and had passed a brick-dust substance, and sometimes a stony substance. I believe I would have died if I had not taken Foley's Kidney Cure." Solt by A. K. Fisher.

Obituary.

This community has again sustained a great loss in the death of one of its best citizens, Wm. H. Scott, son of Peyton and Serapita Scott, born May 14, 1813. After a lingering illness of several months' duration he entered into eternal rest September 5, 1905, at his home near Simpson. He was married to Anna Simpson February 24, 1837, and to this union were born two children, Peyton E. Scott and Mrs. Eddie L. Gray, with the mother, are left to mourn the loss of a kind christian father and husband. Mr. Scott was born and reared on the farm on which he died. His was one of the quiet, home-loving dispositions, of which we find but few in this restless, hurrying age, quiet and unassuming in every thing. Those who knew him best had learned to value him most for his loyalty to truth and honesty. He was one of whom it could well be said "His word is as good as his bond." He professed faith in Christ and was baptized into the Baptist church at Lost Run in November, 1888, and went into the organization of the Garfield Baptist church three years ago, and lived a consecrated Christian life, that should be an example to all, and especially to his children, that they may strive to follow his example and live for God's glory. And while his wife and children sorrow for they have the blessed assurance that he is safe in the arms of Jesus. Garfield, Ky. A Friend.

Shows at Hawesville Also.

The Great Sun Brothers' New Railroad Shows, one of the smaller circuses, which exhibits at Hardinsburg next Tuesday, will be at Hawesville Monday. The smaller circuses, as a rule, do not make Cloverport.

HAS STOOD THE TEST 25 YEARS.

The old, original GHOVER'S CREAM, still holds its place as the best and most reliable and a tasteless food. No cure for gas.

Several runs were made by the dogs but there were no satisfactory results. They returned to Louisville Friday morning, and the robbery remains as much of a mystery as ever.

This is the fourth time the store has been burglarized in recent years, and the fact that the same kind of articles are stolen each time, would seem to indicate that the same thieves have looted the store upon each occasion.

No clue has yet developed that gives any hope of leading to the discovery of the burglars.

Registration Day October 3.

Registration day comes this year on October 3 and will be held in every incorporated town in the county. All entitled to vote in November will be entitled to registration. The polls will open at 6 a. m. and close at 9 p. m. Each voter must register in the precinct in which he lives.

There will also be a supplemental registration on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, immediately preceding the November election.

Thousand People on Show Boat.

At least a thousand people attended the performance given here last Wednesday night on the Sunny South, Swallow & Markle's new floating palace. A. M. Cheek, the manager, said the seating capacity of the boat is 1,300, and there were only a few sections where all the seats were not occupied. People were present from various points over the county and a large number came over from Toltinsport. Many of those who attended said the performance was the most refined and entertaining seen here this year.

The Sunny South had been advertised as the largest and finest show boat in the world. When the people saw it from the landing at the lower wharf they were satisfied that it excelled all Ohio river shows in these two respects. The company was as large, perhaps, as ever seen here and above the average. The show was honestly presented and managed in a satisfactory manner.

Minnett Expect: Many Delegates.

President John E. Minnett, of the Hancock county A. S. of E., was in the city today conferring with the DeWitt county A. S. of E. officials on the tobacco situation. He is a delegate to the tobacco growers' association, which is to meet here October 19, 20 and 21. He says his union will meet in special session about October 25 to prepare for the national meeting. He stated that several of the twenty-six locals in his county would send delegates to the meeting. Asked if he thought there would be 1,000 delegates at the meeting he stated that he expected at least one thousand delegates from Kentucky alone as every county is entitled to three delegates and every local wishing a separate representative is entitled to one.—Wednesday's Owensboro Inquirer.

WAS A VERY SICK BOY

But Cured By Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"When my boy was two years old he had a very severe attack of bowel complaint, but by the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy we brought him out all right," says Maggie Hixcox, of Midland, Mich. This remedy can be depended upon in the most severe cases. Even cholera infantum is cured by it. Follow the plain printed directions and a cure is certain. For sale by Short & Haynes.

Price's Show Boat Sinks.

Cairo, Ill., Sept. 16.—Price's show boat struck a log at the mouth of the Cache river, five miles above this city, in the Ohio river, to-night and sank. The boat lies with three feet of water over her deck. The people all escaped to the tow boat that was towing the show boat.

BLACK LICK BAPTIST CHURCH, NEAR GLENDEANE, DEDICATED ON SUNDAY; ALL DEBT WAS PREVIOUSLY RAISED.

Black Lick Baptist church, three miles southwest of Glendean, was dedicated Sunday. Rev. J. T. Lewis, of this city, preached the dedicatory sermon in the morning and Rev. Baker preached in the afternoon, an all-day meeting being held. A large crowd was present and dinner in abundance was served. The main feature of the dedication was the fact that the debt on the church had been raised and no contribution was asked for.

Rev. Lewis preached the dedicatory sermon at 11 o'clock taking his text from the seventeenth chapter of John. The crowd was so large that only about two thirds of those present could get within the church to hear the remarks appropriate to the occasion that Rev. Lewis made during his sermon. The singing was very good and added much to the spiritual enjoyment of the day. After the dinner, hour, the rejoicing, congratulations and social side of the occasion were engaged in until 2 o'clock, when a sermon was delivered by Rev. Baker, who has been supplying the church, and will probably continue to do so until December, when the congregation expect to call a regular pastor.

The Black Lick congregation have a splendid house of worship for a country church. It is a frame building and about the size of the old Goshen church, which was razed to the ground. It is nicely painted and carpeted and makes an excellent appearance for its size and style of architecture. The choir and pulpit arrangements are especially nice.

Black Lick Baptist church and the new Baptist church at Glendean, which is known as the Glendean Baptist church, are the two churches resulting from old Goshen Baptist church, the congregation of which was formerly composed of the majority of the members of the two new churches. The old church formerly stood on the Johnson Deane farm near Glendean. The doors, the steps, part of the floor and other material from it were used in the construction of Black Lick church.

Black Lick church was admitted into the Breckinridge Association of Baptists at the third annual session, in this city on August 30-31, increasing the number of churches in this organization to thirteen. The dedication was a success in every respect and the fact that the cost of erecting and furnishing the church was met before the day of the dedication argues well for its future growth and influence.

Colt Show at Bewleyville.

Irvington, Ky., Sept. 19.—(Special.)—The colt show held at Bewleyville Saturday morning under the direction of Chas. H. Drury, was one of the swell society events of the season. The "400" was there and one had to draw slightly upon the imagination to feel it must be the real horse show. Fourteen handsome colts entered the ring. The blue ribbon was justly placed upon the best colt in the ring, that of Wm. Kendall, Chas. Hardaway's colt bore off the second prize.

Mr. Sheldon Resigns Position.

A. C. Sheldon has resigned his position with the News as foreman, which he held for nearly two years. Saturday he went to Evansville, where his family have been for several weeks and where he will probably soon start a job printing plant. Mr. Sheldon was foreman of the Derby Game Bird, a poultry magazine published at Derby, Ind., before accepting his position with the News. Prior to the 1st of March, 1901, which destroyed the old News plant, he was in the employ of the paper for four years.

Mr. Sheldon is an experienced and capable printer and a competent newspaper foreman. All work done personally by him, or under his supervision, as foreman of the paper and in the job printing department, has been first-class and up-to-date in every detail. He is fully acquainted with the business and gave entire satisfaction while in the employ of the News.

Make-Up of the Legislature.

The first number of the Kentucky Issue, the official organ of the Antislavery League, has just been received. Under the head of "What To Do in the Legislature," is the following:

"We must look carefully to the make-up of the next legislature. I suggest the following plan of operation:—

"1st. Ascertain reliably and by committee from the candidate himself his position on the 'County Unit Bill.'"

"2nd. If he will not commit himself and there is no candidate against him who will so commit himself ask him if he will vote for the bill if a majority of his constituency can be shown to be for the bill.

"3rd. If he so agrees send to us for blank forms of petition and have these signed by every voter in the county or district who will do so. To accomplish this the county should be assigned by precincts to those persons who will see that the petitions are signed.

"4th. Let religious bodies everywhere pass resolutions asking representation of the people in the county unit bill. Push the work vigorously for the time is short. With the County Unit Bill Kentucky will be practically a dry state.—H. K. Taylor, Asst. State Supt."

Regarding the County Union Bill the issue says, in part:—
"Other measures may be desirable, but the bill that will give the majority of the people in the county the decision of whether saloons shall exist in the county, is by all odds the best measure to be secured."

CHECKS FRIENDS' ENTHUSIASM.

At Jefferson Club Dinner Mr. Bryan Says He's No Candidate.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—"I want to make my position perfectly clear," I want to say to you that not only am I not announcing a candidacy, but I am not permitting a candidacy.

In these words William J. Bryan administered a check to the enthusiasm which at the Jefferson Club banquet given last night by Mr. Bryan's honor greeted the speeches advocating his nomination for the third time for President.

There had been warm words of praise for Mr. Bryan, particularly from Congressman Otto M. James, of Kentucky, and Judge J. P. Tarvin, of Covington, Ky., who had declared unqualifiedly for Mr. Bryan as the Democratic nominee for President in 1908, and from Alexander Troup, of New Haven, Conn., who declared that Bryan was the natural and legitimate leader of the Democratic party in the coming campaign.

"I am not now," said Mr. Bryan, "a candidate for any office. I have never said that I would never again be a candidate for office, but I want to say now that talk of candidacy for office does not affect me as it once did. I believe that my place in history will be determined by what the people are able to do for me, but by what I am able to do for the people. I think it is now too soon to choose a candidate for President to make the race three years from now; it is too early to place a candidate in any man. I trust that before the time comes to name a man for the next presidential race light may be thrown upon our party's pathway, that a man may be chosen who will be able to do for the party more than I have yet been able to do."

Covers were laid for 300 guests, and among those present were Congressman H. T. Rainey, of Illinois; Congressman Otto M. James, of Kentucky; Mayor Edward F. Dunne, of Chicago; Judge James P. Tarvin, of Covington, Ky.; Samuel Alschuler, of Aurora, Ill.; E. L. Masters, president of the Jefferson Club; Clarence S. Darrow, and other Chicagoans.

A Cold Settled in His Kidneys.

A. J. Jenness, 9201 Butler St., Chicago, writes: "I am a switchman and am out in all kinds of weather. I took a cold when settled in my kidneys and I was in bad shape. I tried several advertised remedies with no benefit, until I was recommended to try Foley's Kidney Cure. Two thirds of a bottle cured me." Sold by R. Fisher.

Boy Starving.

(Pueblo County Messenger.)

Sherriff Baskett and Hewitt McAniffe are feeding several head of mules on H. C. Woodson's farm near town and Sunday they went out to see how they were getting along and on their return they brought the terrible news it seems that "Soda" Brown, who is Mr. Woodson's overseer, had a boy to climb a corn stalk to see how the corn was getting along and now the stalk is growing faster than the boy can climb down and he is out of sight. Three neighbors have undertaken to chop the stalk down with axes and save the boy from starvation, but it goes so fast they can't hit twice in the same place. Mr. McAniffe says the boy is living on nothing but raw corn and has already thrown down over five bushels of corn. Quite a number went out Monday to ascertain the facts in the case.

SWINE RAISING SIXTY YEARS AGO.

Copied from the Poultry Tribune and published by request.

A writer in National Farmer quotes some interesting extracts from agricultural reports of 1854 which give the younger generation an excellent idea of the great improvement in this industry in the last half-century. We quote as follows:

"Recently we have looked over a little of the correspondence in an agricultural report made fifty years ago. Several farmers write very interesting letters about the hog business. An Alabama correspondent of 1854 says: 'Very few imported swine have found their way here. Nor is it necessary, as varieties can be multiplied at infinitum from the same stock by selection and treatment.' He adds that some of their hogs reach maturity at 18 to 24 months, while others require 30 to 36 months. The average value when killed is $10 to $12 per head, from which we infer that the weights were not heavy."

"A McHenry county, Ill., farmer says that hogs are raised there 'in great quantities, of almost every breed, from the long-nosed Hoosier or Prairie rooter to the small-boned Middlesex.' All these breeds are now extinct in Illinois, we believe."

"Another Illinois farmer was something of a pessimist so far as the hog business is concerned, as then carried on. He said:

"Most farmers consider hogs the most indispensable part of their stock. Some few gain largely by raising them, but I sincerely believe, if all the accounts were carefully balanced, the facts would show a heavy annual loss to the producer. Our farmers are not yet properly fixed for the profitable raising of hogs. Too much corn is fed to them, and when they are at last brought into market, generally at two years old, their heads have been twice cut off by corn cobs. The fall of the year, when acorns and other nuts ripen, is the only time that they will thrive without being fed upon the most costly of our crops—corn. Some few experiments have proved that the most profitable food for the hog is provender. In this climate, at any age, is clover, the raising of which may be said to be but just in its infancy. Of breeds of swine we have a great variety, from the genuine 'Landpik' up to the best 'Berkshire.' Experience has amply established the fact that growing is decidedly advantageous. Many of our hogs do not mature at a less age than two years. These are mostly large-bodied, large-framed animals. Others again mature at a year old, and are generally diminutive in size, but small eaters and take on fat fast."

The crossing of such with the large is always attended with decided benefit. The cost of raising hogs will, of course, much depend upon the kind. Some cost not over $3; others double that sum. For the last two years the producer realized from 4 to 6 cents per pound for pork. This year the probabilities are against so high a figure."

"Maine seems to be away ahead of Illinois in the improvement in its hogs in the fifties. One correspondent said:

"We have excellent breeds of hogs, but much crossed. Pork is mostly made from oats and peas ground together and mixed with boiled potatoes. None packed for market. Average price 8 cents a pound. Average weight 18 months old, 400 pounds."

"A Wayne county, N. Y., correspondent reports that the Suffolk breed is making the lead there."

"A Harrison county, O., farmer says:

"The 'Berkshire' and 'Irish Gravel' are the best breed of hogs raised among us. With good feed and care they will weigh from 300 to 400 pounds each at 18 months old. Price of pork here varies from $4 to $6 per hundred. The former price will hardly pay for raising."

"In Center county, Pa., the Berkshire and Chester county Whites are reported as the best breeds, and the correspondents say that hograising might be a profitable business there if these could be kept 'without becoming mixed with other swine of inferior quality.'"

"A Washington, N. Y., correspondent says:

"Although it may not generally be known, I will state the propensity that swine have to eat the droppings of our domestic fowls. When the latter it has once been contracted the hog loses his appetite for food, no matter what its quality, and if he has an opportunity he seeks it unremittingly. The effects are equal to that of opium-eating on the human species—the animal becoming morose, dejected, and, in his power, he constantly attends the fowls, seemingly only with the intent of gratifying the morbid appetite thus acquired. I know of no remedy except to shut them off from indulging in the fatal habit."

"I would here incidentally remark that the swine which have access to the dung of near cattle, which feed on corn, most industriously follow them and contract this sticky habit; but not to the degree mentioned above. Swine also which bed upon fermenting stable manure become much more susceptible to cold."

order their commanders immediately after the signature of the treaty of peace to put the protocol in execution. The protocol is signed by Witte, Rosen, Komura and Takahira.

Are You Engaged.

Engaged people should remember, that, after marriage, many quarrels can be avoided, by keeping their digestion in good condition with Electric Bitters. S. C. A. Brown of Bonnetville, S. C., says: "For years, my wife suffered intensely from dyspepsia, complicated with a torpid liver, until she lost her strength and vigor, and became a mere wreck of her former self. Then she tried Electric Bitters, which helped her eat and, finally made her entirely well. She is now strong and healthy." Short & Haynes, druggists, sell and guarantee them, at 50c a bottle.

Plans Mile-A-Minute Airship. Roy Knabenshue, of Toledo, who has had more success as an aeronaut, perhaps, than any man in the country began his career in aerial navigation three years ago, when, in company with his brother, he made a balloon ascension from the Toledo fair grounds. After an elevation of 1,500 feet had been reached, the balloon ran away and the boys spent the night in a wild tumble through clouds and over tree tops. They were able to cast their anchor the next morning by means of an orchard, somewhat bruised but safe.

Of his experience he said: "Dirigibility of the airship I have already secured, but the problem at present is to secure an engine that at no time will lose its action. I had it to stop on one while at a great altitude but, fortunately, it immediately started up again."

"Aerial navigation is no longer a matter of chance. I see no reason why, in the end, a ship can not be constructed that will travel a mile a minute, although twenty miles an hour is a good rate of speed at present."

"Within two or three years I hope to be able to leave Chicago and sail to stop on one while at a great altitude but, fortunately, it immediately started up again."

Miss Roberta McGavock Married.

Miss Roberta McGavock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. McGavock, who reside near town, was married Sunday to Mr. Perry Norvall, at Louisiana, Mo., where Miss McGavock held a position for several months as cashier in a large department store.

Miss McGavock is a most devoted young lady and has many friends in Breckenridge and Hancock counties. Only a few months ago she went to Louisiana.

Mr. Norvall's home is at Nashville, Tenn. He is a promising young railroad engineer.

Mr. Norvall will arrive here in November for a visit to her parents but Mr. Norvall will not come until next spring. They will reside at Kansas City.

Dr. Josiah Hale Dead.

Owensboro, Ky., Sept. 14.—Dr. Josiah Hale, the oldest practitioner in his section of the state, died this afternoon of general debility. He was for a number of years one of the leading physicians in Western Kentucky, but retired from active practice about ten years ago. He had degrees from several of the most prominent medical schools in America and England.

Dr. Hale was seventy-six years old. He was born near Fordville, Ohio county, and began the practice of his profession there. He is survived by three sons, all of whom are physicians. Allen Dean, of Owensboro, and a sister, Mrs. Mattie Gray, of Fordville.

It is ever too well known that Little Elder's for biliousness or constipation you know what pill pleasure is. These famous little pills cleanse the liver and rid the system of all bile without producing unpleasant effects. Sold by All Druggists.

OUR MAGAZINE SECTION.

The Special Features—Original And Instructive Flatter.

The special attention of our readers is called to our magazine section, a feature of the News which was inaugurated a few weeks ago. It contains original and instructive matter and is not made up of newspaper clippings. The special articles are by writers of known reputation, and the profuse illustrations with the matter itself make it equal to the best magazine section published with the leading Sunday daily newspapers. The feature articles this week are as follows:

MODERN CLIFF DWELLERS. The sky scrapers of big cities taking place of homes.

OPEN DOOR IN CHINA. Policy is assured as result of Russian-Japanese war.

LITERARY WORKS OF JOHN HAY. To be published by his daughter.

THE PARCELS POST. Movement to secure enactment of such law.

THE WORLD'S ANARCHISTS. England, a dumping ground for the advocates of assassination.

NATIVES OF SAMOA. American clothes cause consumption and other diseases.

TALE OF LOUISIANA. A thrilling short story by D'Art Mail-liv.

WORK OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE. Article by Guy Elliott Mitchell on "Macaroni and Corn Flour."

THE PLAYING HOBBO. Experiment found that the real hobbo has soured the souls of humanity.

Tarascon in Morning Star's Place. The Morning Star has gone on the way at Madison for repairs, and the Tarascon, which has been repaired at New Albany and has just gotten off the docks, took her place in the Evansville and Louisville trade last week.

Tumors Conquered Without Operations

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in Cases of Mrs. Fox and Miss Adams.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy, Tumor.

So-called "wandering pains," or the presence of danger may be made manifest by excessive menstruation accompanied by unusual pain extending from the ovaries down the groin and thighs.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation; secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound right away and begin its use and write Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., for advice.

Read these strong testimonials from grateful women who have been cured:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—(First Letter.) "In looking over your book, I see that your medicine cures Tumors of the Uterus. I have been to a doctor and he tells me I have a tumor. I will be more than grateful if you can help me, as I do so dread an operation."

—Fannie D. Fox, 7 Chestnut St., Bedford, Pa. Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—(Second Letter.) "I take the liberty to congratulate you on the success I have had with your wonderful medicine."

Eighteen months ago my monthlies stopped. Shortly after I felt so badly I submitted to a thorough examination by a physician, and was told that I had a tumor of the uterus and would have to undergo an operation."

"I soon after read one of your advertisements and decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. After taking five bottles as directed, the tumor is entirely gone. I have again been examined by the teachers of Breckenridge county will attend and go prepared to compete in the commencement contest of county graduates."

Teachers to go to Chautauqua. The teachers of the county institutes in this part of the State are announcing their intention of holding their annual meeting next year at the Seven Hills Chautauqua at Owensboro in August. The teachers of Daviess county have already voted overwhelmingly to join the Daviess county institute at the Chautauqua, and it is expected that the teachers of Breckenridge county will attend and go prepared to compete in the commencement contest of county graduates.

Secret of Rockefeller's Success. John D. Rockefeller submitted to an interview at Cleveland. "Time allows and adjusts almost everything," he said. "It takes infinite patience and courage to compel men to have confidence in one. I believe I have both of these qualities, and I also believe they are the secrets of my success."

TWO CELEBRATED LECTURERS

On Alfalfa Train Farmers' Clubs are Asked to Attend in Body

Herbert Vreeland, Commissioner of Agriculture, Labor and Statistics, in his printed announcement of the "Alfalfa and Corn Specialist" train which is to run over Kentucky between September 20 and October 4, under the auspices of the State Department of Agriculture, says:

"Joseph E. Wing, of Ohio, will be the principal lecturer on alfalfa, the most valuable forage crop in the world. It has been demonstrated that alfalfa can be raised in a large portion of Kentucky and its introduction will mean much to the farmer. It is the most prolific yielder, one of the best soil enrichers and one of the richest foods known. Booklets with full directions for growing, etc., will be distributed along the route free of charge. Every farmer should avail himself of the opportunity of hearing two of the most celebrated lecturers on agricultural subjects in the United States.

"The corn department will be in charge of Prof. P. G. Holden, of Ames, Iowa, who last year increased the corn crop of Iowa 10,000,000 bushels. Don't fail to hear him on the proper selection of seed corn and other phases of corn growing. Prof. Holden is one of the foremost agricultural experimenters in the United States.

"This is the first special ever run over the State in the direct interest of the farmers and no farmer should miss the opportunity of hearing these celebrated men.

"Farmers' clubs are requested to attend in a body."

A representative of the Kentucky Experimental Station will also be on board, as well as Commissioner Vreeland, R. C. Crenshaw, Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture; R. C. Giltner, a prominent stockman, of Kentucky; Willis Wing, brother of Col. Joseph E. Wing, and perhaps several others interested in the movement will make the trip.

The introduction of alfalfa growing into Kentucky is due to the efforts of Commissioner Vreeland. Among the samples of alfalfa shown on the train will be a sample of the grain in one and one half feet in height grown on a one-hundred acre field one-half mile from Frankfort.

The train, as scheduled last week, will be at Cloverport from 3:15 p. m. September 29, to 8:30 a. m. September 30. It will arrive at Stephensport at 8:49 for a thirty minutes' stop and at Irvington at 9:55 for a like stop.

Pain from a Burn Promptly Relieved by Chamberlain's Pain Cure.

A little child of Michael Strauss, of Vernon, Conn., was recently in great pain from a burn on the hand, and as cold applications only increased the inflammation, Mr. Strauss came to Mr. James N. Nichols, a local merchant, for something to stop the pain. Mr. Nichols says: "I advised him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and the first application drew out the inflammation and gave immediate relief. I have used this liniment myself and recommend it very often for cuts, burns, strains, and lame back, and have never known it to disappoint."

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deep-seated and so insidious. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney trouble. It is advanced to kidney trouble is allowed to develop, the kidney-polluted blood will attack the vital organs or the kidneys themselves break down and the body will be away from cell.

Bladder troubles most always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are afflicted, you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and succeeding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is realized. It stands the highest for its cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to the taste, and has been used by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sized bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., P.O. Box 539, Albany, N. Y. When writing mention reading this advertisement in this paper. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, P.O. Box 539, Albany, N. Y.

October Cosmopolitan.

Booth Tarkington, W. W. Jacobs, Alfred Henry Lewis, Edwin Letevie, James L. Ford, Ambrose Bierce and Herbert Quick are contributors to the October "Cosmopolitan"—an unusually large number of popular names for a popular magazine. Needless to say the entire issue is well worth reading, and the illustrations are attractive, being contributed by Will Owen, famous in England for his character work, W. L. Jacobs, Frank Tenney Johnson, Ursin Lowell, Frank Verbeck, Phillips Ward, Henry Raleigh, F. T. Richards and Seymour M. Stone. On the whole, it is a very beautiful magazine.

It is easy to relieve a cough or cure a cold after a copious evacuation of the bowels. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar is the Original Laxative Cough Syrup. It acts on the bowels—expels all cold from the system, and cures coughs by removing the cause. This remedy clears the phlegm and strengthens the mucous membrane of the throat, chest, lungs and bronchial tubes. The honey bee and the red clover blossoms are on every bottle of Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar, the Original Laxative Cough Syrup. Sold by All Druggists.

New Game Law in Effect.

The closed hunting season for rabbits and squirrels, which began last Friday, will continue until November 15, when the open game season begins.

According to an amendment to the game law it is unlawful to kill or pursue or have in possession when killed any rabbit or squirrel during the forbidden period. Rabbits, however, can be caught with dogs or in snares. The penalty is a fine of not less than $5, nor more than $25 for each offense.

The law making a closed season on rabbits and squirrels, was secured by the sportsmen of the State to stop the practice of hunting quail under the guise of hunting for rabbits and squirrels.

This Week at Macaulay's.

Digby Bell in the Augustus Thomas Charles Dana Gibson comedy, based on Walter's series of drawings. The education of Mr. Pipp, one of his first engagements outside of his New York one, and a three weeks triumph in Chicago, at Macaulay's Theatre, Louisville, next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, where it will be for four performances. In addition to Mr. Bell, the entire cast which carried the play through an entire season at the Liberty Theatre, New York, last winter has been re-engaged and will be seen here. The principal characters, besides the inimitable Mr. Pipp, are his wife and two daughters, the latter being perfect representations of the type idealized by Charles Dana Gibson and known familiarly as Gibson girls as flesh and blood can reproduce. Besides comedy which keeps the audience in roars of laughter there is a dramatic touch to the third act which raises this play to the standard of a powerful drama for a brief scene. The sale of seats opened Monday, September 18. The cast includes: W. S. St. Clair; Helen Tracy; Janet Beecher; Adele Leuchman; Edith Johnston; Sam Coot; Digby Bell; Robert Warwick; Frank Powell; Fred Courtney; Elvora Carroll; Fred Reynolds; William Evans; Grace Thorne; C. Jay Williams; Harry L. Lang; and Jessie Baldwin.

Plan For Controlling Marketing Of Tobacco Submitted to the Growers.

C. H. Taylor in Up-To-Date Farming.

Controlled marketing is the principle whereby we hope to maintain profitable prices for the products of our labor. Plans for controlling the marketing are many and varied. Crops, location, and local conditions make varied plans a necessity.

The Owensboro convention is to adopt the most feasible and practical plan for controlling the marketing of tobacco grown in the various states, and as the editors of Up-To-Date Farming have called for ideas along this line, one plan is submitted herewith. Consider it and if there are better ones bring them to the convention.

To be popular, a plan must be simple. Simplicity is the leading feature of this plan.

Approximately, all the tobacco grown in the United States, whether consumed at home or abroad, reaches some of the great tobacco markets sooner or later. These markets are at Cincinnati, Ohio; Clarksville, Tenn.; Edgerton, Wis.; Louisville, Ky.; Baltimore, Md.; Richmond, Va.; and Lancaster, Pa. There are a number of lesser markets but these are the principal ones.

The different growers' associations should form a federation. This federation should establish a tobacco clearing house. In each of these markets, and in the others of sufficient importance to justify, A competent manager with assistants should be given charge of each.

All tobacco grown should be carefully classed, graded, weighed, priced and stored by local organizations and a complete report with sample sent to each clearing house and entered on the books.

Minimum prices on each class and grade should be established at the annual meeting of the federation. These prices should be forwarded to the clearing house managers.

All sales should be made only by the manager of the clearing house in the following manner. A catalog of tobacco, containing a complete report of the tobacco crop should be sent each company engaged in the manufacture of tobacco, and in case of export tobacco, to foreign dealers. This catalog will give information as to the quantity and quality of the tobacco, and buyers will be informed that only at the clearing houses can this tobacco be obtained.

Settlements and statements will be made monthly or quarterly as may be deemed best. To illustrate: During the quarter ending September 30, a clearing house makes sales of dark palaces. Miss Carl painted four portraits of the famous Empress Dowager of China, and for nearly a year resided at court, attended all fetes, and saw the Empress Dowager, on terms of pleasant and intimate companionship.

POLITICAL NOTES.

There is no trouble in the rank and file of the Republican party in this county, so far as we are able to learn. At Union Star both parties will poll their usual vote. This is one of the "hottest" precincts in the county, and nearly every voter is politician and a worker. Sam Bassett is a mighty strong man up there and a good many Democrats will vote for him on personal grounds. At Irvington and Bewleyville very little is being said or done. You never hear politics mentioned save when a candidate comes around and branches the subject. The people seem to be too busy and too prosperous to pay any attention to the election.

We met "Dink" Childs on the train the other day returning from Hancock county. He had been in that county for several weeks buying apples. When asked about the political outlook in that county he said: "Dick Owen stands mighty well with both Democrats and Republicans and will get a big Republican vote. Lott is not a strong man and will not carry the Republican vote. I have heard more than fifty Republicans say they could not support him and that they would vote for Owen. The Democratic candidate for sheriff, Kelly, is very popular and he will be elected. Nick Greathouse, the Republican candidate for county clerk, seems to have a walk-over for that office." As for Meade county, Mr. Childs said that it would poll its usual Democratic majority of 600 or 700.

Politics is very quite at the county seat, more quite than we have ever known before at this time of a campaign. Both parties seem to be on the lookout for something to turn up and they seem to be waiting for the other fellow to turn it up. You ask a Democrat candidate for news of the campaign and he will tell you that things were never in better shape for his party. And, on the other hand, the Republicans will tell you the same thing. Sherman Ball says that he never, in the history of his campaigning, knew things to be in finer shape for his election and the entire Republican ticket, and you go to his opponent, W. F. Hook, and he will tell you that his outlook is fine and that there is no doubt of his election. The fact is that the voters are taking very little interest, so far as we are able to judge. They are saying very little and you seldom hear the election mentioned in a crowd where there is no candidate or a precinct politician. What it means no one can tell, only that the people have made up their minds to vote their sentiments and they are not saying much about it. Whether this means success for the Republicans or Democrats no one can tell. This state of affairs is a good omen. It is an indication that the people have something to do, they are too busy attending to their own affairs and have no time to waste discussing county politics. In fact, there should be no politics in a county election. The thing to do is for the voter to select the best men, regardless of their politics, and vote for them.

CHAS. DRURY'S WORK FOR STOCK INTERESTS.

Chas. Drury's colt show, as usual, attracted a very large crowd to Bewleyville last Saturday. It reminded one of an old-fashioned county fair, minus the brass band. There was in the neighborhood of a thousand people present. Men, women and children for miles around were there dressed in their best bib and tucker, and all deeply interested in the outcome of the colt show. It was one of the best looking crowds we ever saw in Breckenridge county. There were more pretty women and girls, and handsome turnouts and fine horses and, as a matter of course, when it comes to the display of colts these couldn't have been beat.

Charlie Drury is certainly doing a great work for the stock interest of that section of the county. People are taking more interest in their horses and mules, raising more of them and taking more pride in them than they ever did before. There were fifteen colts contesting for the blue ribbon and not a bad colt in the whole bunch. They all showed their good stock and breeding. The three contesting colts were Wm. Kendall's, Chas. Hardaway's and Chas. Moorman's. The judges were Henry Livers, Ben S. McCoy and John Ditto. These judges, on the first round, could not agree, each casting a vote for a different colt. To unlock the tie vote, two more judges were called in, Thos. Blythe and Crawford Beauchamp. On the second ballot three votes were cast for Kendall's colt and one each for the others, giving the first premium to Kendall. The third ballot gave the second premium to Hardaway. These two colts were as handsome as pictures and it was a hard matter for the judges to decide which was the best. The only point in favor of Kendall's colt was its color. It is a beautiful bay, while Hardaway's is a beautiful light sorrel. The owners refused $100 each after the show.

In the mule contest, John Allgood, of Meade county, captured the prize. There were a fine lot of mule colts, all handsome, smooth and of a good size. Allgood's colt was a big, fine-headed fellow and in size equaled a good many three-year-olds.

The show turned out very satisfactory to all parties and while some were disappointed in not getting the first colts, yet it did not change their minds on the value and style of their colts.

There is nothing that a farmer or his wife or his children take more pride in than a beautiful young, active, high-bred colt. It's the pride of the whole household. And it is a good thing. When you arouse people's pride you have touched the finest chord in man's being. Colt shows are a good thing for the community and there ought to be more of them. We suggest to Squire Drury to engage a brass band for his next show and make an all-day affair of it.

TO CATARRH SUFFERERS

Hyomei Guaranteed to Cure by Short & Haynes or [Money Refunded.

The popularity and increase in the sales of Hyomei are unique in the annals of medicine. Such astonishing cures have been made by this remedy that the proprietors have authorized Short & Haynes to sell every package of Hyomei under an absolute guarantee that it will cure catarrh. If it does not, the purchaser can have his money refunded by Short & Haynes.

Hyomei is no ordinary remedy. It is the only method of treatment that sends by direct inhalation to the most remote part of the air passages, a balsamic air that destroys all catarrhal germs in the breathing organs, enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone, and makes a permanent and complete cure of catarrh.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, and if one bottle does not cure, an extra bottle of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most economical of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the only one that follows Nature in the methods of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

Breathe through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day, and your catarrh is cured. That's all.

If not cured, Short & Haynes will refund your money.

SOFT CORE

Like the running brook, the red blood that flows through the veins has to come from somewhere.

The springs of red blood are found in the soft core of the bones called the marrow and some say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.

Scott's Emulsion makes new blood by feeding the bone marrow and the spleen with the richest of all fats, the pure cod liver oil.

For pale school girls and invalids and for all whose blood is thin and pale, Scott's Emulsion is a pleasant and rich blood food. It not only feeds the blood-making organs but gives them strength to do their proper work.

The bridge over salt river, he says, will probably be completed within two months.

Rev. P. L. King preached his last sermon as pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, Sunday morning. In the evening a union service was held, with the members of the Presbyterian church, many Baptists also being present. Rev. T. C. Kerr, of Hodgenville, pastor of the Presbyterian church, filled the pulpit, at the request of Rev. King. The sermon preached by Rev. King at the morning service and the one preached by Rev. Kerr at the evening service were well received, each containing wholesome advice spoken in a plain, unassuming manner. The congregation at each service was large.

MODERN CLIFF DWELLERS.

THE SKYSCRAPERS OF BIG CITIES TAKING PLACE OF HOMES.

Not Only Used for Office Buildings, But Occupied by Thousands of Families.

When the United States Consul in Europe says to his visiting countryman, "Come over to my house this afternoon and have a cup of tea with us," the latter makes a careful reconnaissance of the address, and towards five o'clock goes out in search of an unpretentious dwelling such as the modest salary of a consul might warrant. What he finds at the address given him is a big square building, into which he is admitted by an unseen porter, and the luminous stairs of which he climbs, examining brass doorplates at every landing, until at last he comes to the apartment of his host.

Mr. W. J. Bryan, on his recent trip abroad, finding one of our Ambassadors similarly lodged, the difference being the increased rental, inveighed against it as being un-American. He wanted to know why a million American home was not provided—such a house as would give the unlucky foreigner some idea of how we live in America. Mr. Bryan overlooked the fact that in our own big cities the "ideal American home" is rapidly disappearing, and that long before our metropolitan is one-tenth the age of the European capitals, increase of population and greater need for economy will have rendered untenable the modest individual home, and will have driven city dwellers together under one roof in apartment houses whose size is limited only by the confines of the block and the building laws regulating height.

Private Homes Disappearing.

Twenty-five years ago the New Yorker who possessed an annual income of $10,000 lived in his own house and kept a carriage. The New Yorker of to-day with only $10,000 a year hunts an apartment for the mere rent of which he expects to pay not less than $1,800, and he cannot afford a carriage. The trouble is that on the island of Manhattan there is not room for his millions to live in the old-fashioned way, and the cost of living has increased enormously.

They must suspend their dwellings high above the street, in the "skyscrapers," which is worth a king's ransom. There is no room for the stately houses of the revolutionary generation, and away for the warehouses of great mercantile companies. There is no room for the smaller houses of the middle generation—their fronts are pulled off and replaced with the immense plate glass windows of the "exclusive importers." There is no room for churches—their towers are torn down to make space for annexes to the downtown apartment houses.

New York, which offers the best example of the metamorphosis, is, of course, the most un-American of American cities. The Hudson walking up the Battery finds himself in a strange home; here are the high tenements of Naples, Genoa, and Rome, and the Hungarian land among fa-son avenue and it is a long block from the park. But it is on the "east side" and fashionable. The third street beyond it is roaring day and night with the flight of the elevated trains, and beyond that lies one of the poorest sections of New York City, where the children swarm like ants.

West of Central Park, the apartment buildings are still bigger, not so exclusive, and the prices are lower. On Broadway, above Colburn Circle, or Fifty-ninth street, where the Park begins, a fairly comfortable seven-room apartment in one of the smaller buildings, without elevators, may be had for $100 a month and upward. In the bigger twelve and fifteen story structures, where the apartments range from eight to twelve rooms, rents run from $2,500 a year up to $4,000 or more.

TRINITY, ST. PAUL AND OTHER NEW YORK CHURCHES ONCE HOMES ARE NOW OVERSHADOWED BY SKYSCRAPERS.

$5,000, at least. In the best known of these creamy white fifteen-story buildings, adorned with innumerable grilles on balconies painted green, one may secure a bachelor suite, consisting of parlor, bedroom and bath, unfurnished, for the mere pittance of $2,000 a year.

Tiny Hives for Homes.

On Riverside Drive rates are lower. The drive is the most beautiful residence street in the city, but it is far from Fifth avenue and the brown line in over five miles of bay and river is distracting harsh during the winter. Here for $1,800 one may find an apartment comprising a parlor, a library (by courtesy called), three bedrooms, bath, dining-room, pantry, servant's millar surroundings; here are the square-built palaces of Vienna and Budapest. The Russian suffers no homesickness; here are the narrow streets of St. Petersburg and Moscow. Only the native American, with his home full of comfort, air, and light, filled with the picture of sunny, cottage-lined village streets, stifles in the dust and noxious gases of the great street at the skyscrapers.

GRAMERCY PARK, NEW YORK CITY. HISTORIC RESIDENCES OF SAMUEL J. TILDEN, JOHN BIGELOW, AND OTHER FAMOUS AMERICANS SHOWN ON THE RIGHT. SOON TO BE WAY TO ADDITIONAL TOWERING SKYSCRAPERS.

Fit Only for Paupers and Millionaires

It is these new comers, too, who do their share towards changing the appearance of the city. Wherever they congregate, and the migratory impulse to carry them to no farther than the foreign sections of the cities in which they land, they make life intolerable for the American-born, and thus drive out the moderately prosperous from the less expensive localities, until it is only the pauper and the millionaire who can afford to live in New York.

Seven thousand dollars a year for an apartment in New York is not, by any means, the highest price. There are buildings on Fifth, Park, and Madison avenues between 50th and 110th streets in which some of the apartments rent for $15,000 a year. Yet, with the exception of Fifth avenue which runs along the east side of Central Park, these avenues are not particularly beautiful. The electric cars run on Madison

OPEN DOOR IN CHINA.

POLICY IS ASSURED AS RESULT OF RUSSIAN-JAPANESE WAR.

Statistics of the Year Indicate the Enormous Market Opened for American Goods in Manchuria.

With the close of the Russo-Japanese war the "open door" in Manchuria was assured for all time. Russia had been the world that she would see that the trade of Manchuria would be kept free to all nations alike, and that in the event of her victory the United States need never fear trade discrimination there. But while Russia has a traditional friendship for this country the policies of the nation do not inspire confidence that there will be no discrimination against our goods under any circumstances.

But with the victories of war declared in favor of Japan and with the present status of Manchuria fixed for all time in favor of Chinese sovereignty, the world is assured that there will be an open door there for the trade of all nations. To the United States, and especially for the states of the South, there should be a feeling of congratulation over this aspect of the situation.

Great Increase in Trade.

The trade of the United States with China has been going forward with boundless strides in recent years. The larger part of that trade is with Manchuria which constitutes about one-fourth of the trade of the United States along her northern boundary line. About half that trade is in cottons and the consumption of coarse cotton goods manufactured chiefly in the South is constantly increasing. The boycott of Chinese merchants is the only occurrence that has tended to hamper that trade, and it is expected that American trade will, in the near future, succeed in lifting the ban that has been placed on these goods which the Chinese want and which can be secured by them from this country cheaper than from anywhere else.

During July the United States sold to China goods worth about four millions of dollars. During the same month of the previous year the sales amounted to less than half of that value. During the seven months ending July we sold to China over thirty-seven millions worth of goods, which was about four times the amount of our exports there during the same period of the previous year. These figures indicate the rapidity of the trade advances that have been made by American manufacturers in China.

Manchurians Like American Goods.

The people of Manchuria, living in a cool climate, prefer the coarse and strong cotton weave that is turned out by the mills of the Southern States, while the inhabitants of the southern provinces buy the finer fabrics sent there from England. The American trade advantages that have been gained in China have done much to bring the imagination of the Chinese to this country, who have long been told of the wonderful market that awaits American products of all kinds in China, but who have only recently had a demonstration of the nature of that market.

Not only is there established an "open door" in Manchuria, but the trade of all China is open to the nations of the world. The duty on goods entering China does not exceed five per cent, ad valorem, except on opium, which trade the Empire desires to discourage. On most articles the duty is less than five per cent. It is levied wholly for the purpose of raising revenue.

The Chinese Boycott.

But at the moment when the "open door" has been established officially in Manchuria the merchants themselves have determined to boycott American goods in retaliation for the exclusive policy toward the Chinese that has been adopted by the United States and for so long has been enforced. When the American Exposition in Louisiana Purchase Exposition invited China to send exhibits to the world's fair they did not dream that a boycott would result in trade disadvantages for America. The Chinese responded to the invitation liberally. Among those who came to attend the fair were many wealthy Chinese merchants and men of high standing at their homes. They may have heard of our laws from others, but when they came in contact with Uncle Sam's immigration agents they were humiliated by being treated in a manner they saw was not used toward men of any other race. Finally went home thoroughly mad. They were influential members of the great commercial guilds of China and they stirred up such a feeling of dislike for the United States that it was not difficult for them to conduct a boycott against American goods and to extend it to all parts of the Empire.

Will Overcome Discrimination.

It is confidently believed in official circles that the diplomacy of the President will be adequate to the emergency that has been created. It has been in others. Moreover, so long as superior American goods can be furnished at home, there is not a matter that the Chinese Government can absolutely guarantee that it is believed the Government will do much to overcome its effects, and that the near future the trade of the United States with the Chinese Empire will continue to grow at the same wonderful rate that has characterized it in the past.

Japanese Reason for Success.

Baron Komura ascribes the success which Japan has had to a just cause, absolute honesty in the administration of her affairs, and extreme simplicity of life among the masses of her people.

STORY OF AN OLD LOVE.

The Romantic History of Two Sweethearts of the Long Ago Who Discovered Each Other Only to be Separated.

The echo of an old Virginia romance comes from Omaha, where Mrs. Lela Moir, of Lynchburg, Va., has been prostrated over the news that the sweetheart of her youth, whom she has not seen for half a century, but to whom she was on route to be married, had died suddenly, where the marriage was to have taken place upon her arrival.

Before the war, down in Lynchburg, Va., Lela Saunders was one of the belles, while Charlie Clay was one of the best "match" in the country. The two had been sweethearts from their childhood and were engaged to be married. But a lovers' quarrel occurred and young Clay went West and never wrote home.

In 1862, Miss Saunders married, her husband leaving the following day for the war, and three months later his dead body was brought home.

Husband Was a Mason.

But her husband had been a Mason, and last February Lynchburg Masonic lodge was asked by the Elmo lodge of Washington State to furnish information concerning Miss Lela Saunders. Shortly after, Mrs. Moir received a letter from the friend of her childhood, Charlie Clay.

He told of his wanderings through the West and his final settlement in the State of Washington, where fortune had favored him with great financial success. He had married, raised a family and had finally lost his wife. But he had kept the memory of his Virginia sweetheart—his first love—and he had carried her photograph during the fifty years of his absence. He asked her to write, Mrs. Moir did so at once. She, too, had kept the photograph of young Clay which he had given to her when a boy. Further letters followed. As soon as she learned while all of Mr. Clay's children had homes of their own.

Forgot That They Grew Old.

Throughout the correspondence the two old people remembered each other as they were in their young days and from their photographs. Neither pictured the other as old—they were again the sweethearts of their youth. And then it was arranged that they should be married.

Mrs. Moir, sixty-three years old, started West to meet her future husband. Reaching Omaha, she received two telegrams, one that he was very sick, and as she was preparing to hasten to his bedside another came saying that he was dead. The old lady was stricken with grief and taken seriously ill. As soon as she was able to travel she will visit the grave of the man whom she says she has loved all her life.

Ben Butler and New Orleans.

From the Buffalo Express. It would have done Ben Butler good if he could have lived to see the day when New Orleans would welcome Federal control of a yellow fever epidemic with the same enthusiasm that the citizens themselves would raise by popular subscription the money to pay for it as was recently done. General Butler established Federal control of sanitation and everything else in New Orleans during the war. He was roundly abused for it, but he proved exceedingly wise and though they will quarantine in preventing yellow fever.

Country Merchants Forced Out.

"This means," continues the Buffalo Express, "the 'light down' of a parcels post. It means that the big mail order houses will be enabled to handle the mail business through the mails at a cost so little that it will be absolutely impossible for the country merchant to compete.

"The result will be one or more big department stores, according to the size of the place, in each town in country districts, and these will have a hard time to compete with the mail order houses, even though they will be able to get their goods in large quantities at first hand.

"It is, therefore, at once apparent that it is as much to the interest of the manufacturer and wholesaler to shut the mails out of business as it is for the small merchant."

Are the Catalogue Houses

Advancing? While the mail order houses can do a large business in every section where they can get in touch with the customers, it is, however, a much discussed question whether they are a real benefit to the country. They can sell cheaper than deal merchants, and if orders are combined and wisely placed they usually do enough to save the purchaser the express or freight. But on the other hand, things must be ordered from catalogue; there is always more or less disappointment upon their arrival; there is a loss of opportunity for a choice, and it seems practically impossible for the average family to order one of these illustrated catalogues and send in an order without buying a number of articles not in the least needed simply because they seem to be bargains.

Heading Off Lotteries.

Information has been received at the Post Office Department alleging that lottery ticket selling is again flourishing in the United States, which has led to an investigation and recommendation of a grand order against E. Boggs, of Hamburg, Germany, who is alleged to be conducting in the United States the Hamburg State Lottery, the Brunswick State Lottery and the Hessian State Lottery. Circulars intercepted at the New York Post Office apparently notified Hamburg, solicit remittances for ticket drawings in the above lotteries and reveal that remittances were made to Boggs, at Hamburg.

LITERARY WORKS OF JOHN HAY

TO BE PUBLISHED BY HIS DAUGHTER

The country approves of John Hay's selection as his literary executor. The work of preparing the former statesman's papers for publication was completed by his daughter, Mrs. Payne Whitney, who was Miss Helen Hay. She has inherited much of the high literary talent of her father and has been a frequent contributor to the leading periodicals of both prose and verse. It will be her pleasant duty to prepare for publication the many unpublished manuscripts from Mr. Hay's facile pen.

Mrs. Whitney's first published volume of her own was a collection of poems which appeared in 1888. Quite lately, and principally through the influence of her children, she has collected a series of charming stories for little folks. Many of these have attracted critical attention through their equally recognized sense of childhood's hours. As a possible explanation of how she was able to portray things so genuinely from the child's standpoint she has said that she has endeavored always when writing them to hark back to the scenes of her own childhood, and to assist her recollection and imagination she has drawn freely on the floor with pencil and tablet, getting as near actually as possible to the youngest's point of view.

A Tale of Louisiana

BY D'ERF MAILLW

During the great Civil War the Union soldiers encountered many instances of loyal devotion to the old flag. In the South. One particular instance, I recall, of a Southerner, and a Jew, where a tragedy might readily have been enacted. At the time I was Judge Advocate of a military commission, organized in New Orleans during the last year of the war.

A Jew was brought before us, upon the charge of having furnished aid and comfort to the Confederacy. Proof of his guilt appeared quite conclusive. He had been captured within the enemy's lines, opposite Baton Rouge, and upon his person was found a paper containing a very complete list of articles, including revolvers, ammunition, quilting, etc. He had agreed to deliver these the following evening to the Confederate captain, with whom he appeared to be dealing when our boys captured the squad. I have forgotten the article listed, but it was paid for each article being listed at figures far beyond even war prices.

The Jew could speak but little English, and his attorney, who had been colonel in a Western volunteer regiment, and was permitted by courtesy to act in the prisoner's behalf, antagonized from the first, Colonel Buchanan, the president of the commission. The latter was a Regular Army officer of the old school, a man of real parts, West Pointer, who still maintained that McClellan was the best of all our Generals, and that Grant, Sherman and Sheridan were Generals simply by good luck, and without special military acquirements. The attitude of War and military rules and regulations were to him as sacred as Holy Scripture. He was a man of high character, but to the effect that "hanging was paterfamilias helping Repels." The President appeared to consider all this side testimony as wholly irrelevant and useless; apparently his own mind was fully made up as to the prisoner's guilt, although there appeared to me room for very grave doubt. The placid and almost contented look of the Jew, and his unconcern when captured with such a damning paper in his possession, compelled in me a belief that he was not entirely guilty, or at least that the whole truth had not yet been known, and that there must be some extenuating circumstances.

In my position as Judge Advocate, I endeavored to bring out these points, and worded my questions accordingly. But Colonel Buchanan was supreme over any court where he presided, and no question was ever permitted to be asked that he did not fully sanction and offer changes to suit his own views. He tried to be just, yet he was extremely arbitrary and opinionated, and I feared he had already prejudiced the case.

After a consultation with his client, the lawyer said to me: "Like him, the Rebel Captain who commanded the captured squad summoned."

"What do you propose to prove by him?" thundered the Colonel. "He is a Rebel, taken in arms against the Government; I don't if I ought to permit his testimony to have any weight before this Commission."

The lawyer, however, insisted that he was an important witness, and though refusing to reveal his line of defense, demanded that he be produced. He threatened, if his request was refused, to lay the whole matter

"Do you recognize this paper with the list of articles, which he agreed to give me as a signature, to deliver to you, and in which you are described as belonging to the Rebel army?"

"I should reckon I did. Didn't I write it and put it in every blessed article I thought we had, as you call us, could get and make use of?"

I looked at Colonel Buchanan and saw a pallor slowly creeping over his face.

"Do you mean to say, sir," he asked, "that this prisoner did not voluntarily give you people, and of his own free will agree to sell and deliver the articles mentioned in that paper?"

The witness threw his head back and laughed tolerantly. The old Colonel's face changed from white to an ashen red, and he began rapped for order and said, sarcastically, "Please restrain your mercurial and answer my question: remember this is a court room, and not a theatre."

"Be parlor, Colonel, but if you'd seen how the old soldier trembled when I showed my six-shooter under his nose and told him I'd blow out his brains if he didn't sign it, you'd want to laugh, too. The six-shooter hadn't been in a charge, but he didn't know that. You see, the way we got hold of him was this: Some of our boys led him to Baton Rouge, and they know the old fellow has always been considered a big game Yankee, and old Greeley him self. When we saw him inside our lines, near the Ferry, where we were, he'd been to visit some old relative, we made up our minds to get a pretty good thing. We knew he was a rich old cove, and that his store was one of the biggest stocks of goods outside of Orleans. I decided that I could send him into the most anything, but it was tough work. I thought at one time I'd really have to lead up and give him a flash wound to make him give up. Then just as he had signed the paper you Yankee swooped down upon us."

"Do you mean to say, on your oath,"—on your oath, sir," said the Colonel imperiously, "that the prisoner did not send word to you that he would meet you at that Ferry and furnish you certain information and contraband articles for certain sums of money?"

The young Confederate jumped up, and balancing himself on his foot, cried out, with the most intense scorn: "And you call this a Yankee court of justice! Couldn't any of you take trouble enough to find out what kind of a man you were trying? Why any child in Baton Rouge could have told you who old Jew Isaac was, and who he'd had a son 'round here for years and been nearly choked into Kingdon. Come by our boys because he wouldn't tell when they were caught—and all the old fellow would say was, 'hang away.' Couldn't you find out, through some of your smart witnesses, that my own capture was due to the plucky old devil, who was brave enough and loyal enough to you Yankee to send word to your Captain by his little son when and where he had agreed to meet me, in an effort to tell him that I would shoot him down like a dog if he breathed a word to any one?"

And the illustrious Southerner sank down in his chair, wiping the perspiration from his face.

That the dramatic part of this startling denouement was partly arranged by the lawyer, has always been my conviction. He knew from the first that he had a sure case and he had greatly nettled by the sharp words and rudeness of President Buchanan. At any rate, the effect was all that he could have wished. Never before, in his long military career, had the old Colonel's pride received such a blow. His head had been that he had presided over more than fifty court-martials and had seldom had so fine a thing as this to boast of.

The room was cleared and the Colonel, after a few words of explanation, added, "Of course, the case will be dismissed at once and the prisoner released. I desire to confess to you gentlemen that for my part I fear I have allowed my prejudices to influence my judgment, and that I have been nearer than ever before in all my military life committing a very grave and serious error. We are none of us too old to learn."

After adjourning the court, the noble old man went into the adjoining room, shook hands most heartily and courteously with the lawyer, the Confederate Captain and the old Jew, and said that none of them could be more pleased than that any of his people may have been found to be false.

As I was arranging my papers, some one touched me on the shoulder, and looking around I encountered Isaac's swarthy countenance. He said, in his broken English, "I see you are a Mason. I am in the lodge, and learning that he was one, I asked why he had not made himself known before. Oh, my," he said, "not while I was under charges, but now I am very glad to know you as one. I want you to bring me some of your army friends and dine with me next Sunday, handling me his card. I received his invitation and had an experience for the first time of dining in the family of a wealthy Jew."

He had invited a number of his friends, and the board was presided over by his only daughter, the most lovely Jewess I have ever seen. She was tall and graceful as a swan, with a clear, olive complexion through which burned the glow of perfect health, and she looked at me with eyes which, even out of the dim haze of years, I can see distinctly day after day deep wells of melting brown, modestly shaded by long silky lashes.

As I was presented she came bravely forward, a charming blush flushing her face, and she took my hand in her own two little soft ones, she said, in the purest English: "Mason, how can I thank you for your great kindness to my dear old father?" Indeed, I shall always wish you love and happiness.

I disclaimed having done anything at all to warrant her warm thanks; nevertheless they were most pleasant to hear and the grateful glance she gave me well nigh set my voice hoarse. I was so set of her right words, and found her conversation cultured and her self truly bewitching.

The dinner itself was splendid and elaborate, consisting of innumerable courses and of unknown dishes. Some of the wines brought from the vineyard beds, along with costly corks. Over the wine and walnuts, Isaac informed me that he desired to repay me some day for what I claimed to be my great service to him during his trial. I assured him that I had done nothing for him but that the case did fully warrant, but he insisted that but for several of my protests he might have been condemned without a hearing. I explained to him that that was simply the duty of any Judge Advocate; but that said that Jews were never mentioned and made me a point blank offer, that if I would resign my commission and start a store in Mobile, which had then just come into the possession of the Union forces, he would stock it with ten or even twenty thousand dollars' worth of goods, give me the entire charge and make me an equal partner.

As I passed over the old Madeira, visions rose before me of a prosperous business and also frequent calls to Baton Rouge, when I doubted not I would be a welcome visitor at his and his daughter's home, and I all but accepted the offer.

But ere the evening was spent, the spirit of my dreamy sentimentality was gone. An orderly brought the news of another fierce guerrilla raid upon the Bayou, and the next morning, hasty again, thinking the old gentleman for his generous offer and bending over his lovely daughter's hand, I galloped back to my command and was soon again in the saddle on a four days' ride.

A DIFFERENCE IN THE SEXES.
Sentiment Not Highly Developed in Men—Frolic and Unromantic.
When women can get used to the lack of sentiment, and the display of the average man.

It takes a woman to beard up every scrap of the writing of a beloved hand, and lock it away in a desk with blue ribbon around it.

The most curious note he has scribbled in pencil is safely treasured up, not because it breathed unmanly or for sentimental reasons, but because indited in that hand.

Twenty-five years after, she can still regard with tender interest the flower he gave her on such a such a day, which she wore for weeks, and which she tucked religiously into a book. A bit of good she wore when she first saw him, the book, the flower, the first "photo" he gave her—all these things have a naivety and undying interest for women, who are by nature more sentimental than men.

The best man in the world often has singular lack of romance of this sort in his make-up. When the past is over he forgets it. A rose that has served its purpose in his litten-bow, worn on whatever momentous occasion, is esteemed by him to be more fit for the waste basket than the barbed-wire.

He has been known to crumple her bill-donk before his lady's eyes and smilingly toss it to the four winds, and he would be puzzled to understand why that lightning-discharge of his should send a little chill to her heart.

No men are not by nature sentimental animals. They can love without sending themselves with needless efforts belonging to the object of their affections. And far be it to say that theirs is not the wiser method of the two. It simplifies life and is least likely to precipitate future embarrassments.

LUCKY STEERAGE MOTHER.
Child Born Aboard Ship Presented with Wardrobe and Twenty-five Dollars.
A few weeks ago the European steamer of Great Western came limping into New York Harbor after having encountered, according to statements of the steering officials and crew, one of the worst storms ever encountered on the Atlantic. But notwithstanding the rough voyage, there was little incident on shipboard which attracted as much attention as the storm. On the second day out just before the storm broke there was born to one of the steerage passengers a son, who was appropriately named Hercules.

Galles, and the cabin passengers gave him a wardrobe, besides raising $25 for his mother.

After adjourning the court, the noble old man went into the adjoining room, shook hands most heartily and courteously with the lawyer, the Confederate Captain and the old Jew, and said that none of them could be more pleased than that any of his people may have been found to be false.

As I was arranging my papers, some one touched me on the shoulder, and looking around I encountered Isaac's swarthy countenance. He said, in his broken English, "I see you are a Mason. Writ, and like a Roman Senator, he would have stoically passed sentence upon his own son had he been found guilty of breaking the least of the Ten Commandments. In his mildness of tone and gentleness of manner, and that any officer should stoop to enrich himself through the property was cause for the severest punishment and everlasting disgrace. The ex-Colonel of Volunteers, with his breezy Western style and his disregard of red tape and formality, injured his case. He caused the Jew, and several times Colonel Buchanan threatened to forbid his presence before the Commission. The testimony of the Jew was very strong against the prisoner. The captain commanding the Union squad swore clearly and without equivocation to all the details. Word had been brought to him by an unknown boy that a lot of Rebels had been seen several times near the Ferry, opposite Baton Rouge, and would be there again, particularly the evening in question. Obtaining permission from the General commanding, the Captain took part of his company, crossed the river, and went to the Ferry, and there he witnessed the interview between the Confederate Captain and this Jew. He was not close enough to hear the conversation, but he observed the Jew was not surprised to be treated as a prisoner, and when the paper was found upon him, and some of the boys wanted to hang him without trial, he looked bewildered and dumb. He was tempted, two or three times, to make some sort of explanation, but seemed so free and untroubled, and knew the whole matter, and tried to be so confidential, that the Captain, too, at last got angry, and told him that he didn't hold his tongue so great effort would be made to restrain the boys from carrying out their threat. The Sergeant and two of the men testified in much the same way. The Sergeant said that when he saw the Jew, "Why, you gray-headed old sinner, don't you know that that paper was found on you and that you were charged with Haman," the Jew merely shrugged his shoulders and said something to the Rebel Captain, who had before General Banks, commanding the Department. The Colonel flared up in an instant.

"I want you to understand, sir," he said, "that not even the President of the United States can exempt me to summon a witness if I think it unnecessary. I have sworn, as have the other members of this Commission, to my whole duty without fear or favor."

After a few moments of painful silence, possibly seeing from our disgusted looks that we were becoming impatient with his arbitrary manner, he said, "That I do not want to be unfair in this matter."

I ventured to say, "Mr. President, might it not be advisable to summon this witness, and if it is shown that he has no material knowledge, to then refuse to hear him further?"

Utterly ignoring me, he asked the lawyer how soon he could produce the witness.

"A half hour after you issue the summons," was the reply.

"The court stands adjourned till the usual hour to-morrow, Captain," to me, "prepare the necessary summons." "Sir," to the lawyer, "if your witness is not here promptly when the court meets I shall not wait a moment. Too much time has been wasted already."

As the lawyer passed me when leaving the room he gave me a sidelong look, and with a solemn wink whispered, "My lining to-morrow."

Promptly when called the following morning, the Rebel Captain appeared. He was a laughing, bright-eyed young fellow of about 23, using crutches as a result of the loss of his right leg. Colonel Buchanan was immensely polite, and told him not to attempt to stand while the oath was administered. It was evident from the first that our Rebel had no fear of Yankee Colonels or Yankee courts. He called out "Howdy" to the different members, and told our clerkified President that he was jolly glad to see him, but would not be obliged to shake hands with him, and added, "What in the world are you trying to do with old Uncle Isaac?"

MACARONI OR DURUM WHEATS

Work of the United States Department of Agriculture.

GUY ELLIOTT MITCHELL.

The efforts of the Department of Agriculture not only contemplate the introduction into the United States of improved plants and crops from foreign countries to take the place of those which American farmers are already growing, and the breeding up and bettering of those which we now have; but also the introduction of plants into great areas of country now thought to be unfit for farming.

Encroachment is constantly being made upon the waste places of the land; the semi-desert and the low places, by the introduction of crops which, through long years and centuries of acclimatization in similar regions of the Old World, have become either drought or water resistant.

A striking example of this sort of work, which has already proven a high success, is the introduction of the macaroni wheat plant, or, as it is more properly called, durum wheat.

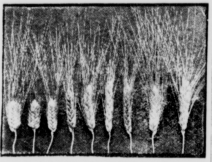

To Establish Macaroni Factories. It was Secretary Wilson's idea at first to introduce the culture of this most all of the cases the decision was made in favor of the broad made from durum wheat flour.

Then began the planting of this wheat on a great scale by the farmers of the Northwest all along the western edge of the wheat belt, where it yielded twenty-five, fifty and even seventy-five per cent. better than blue stem or the other standard wheats.

Opposed by the Millers.

But now came a check. It was difficult to grind this wheat, and the growers found arranged against them the whole combination of Northwestern millers, who said that the wheat was too hard, made only inferior flour and would not make edible bread. But the farmers had the Department of Agriculture back of them, and Mr. Wilson had his own conviction about durum wheat and Northwestern millers, and, moreover, he had the courage to back them up. The trouble with the millers was that with the milling apparatus which they used for grinding ordinary No. 1 Red, they could not grind the harder durum, and so they forced the price of wheat down in the market and threatened to have Secretary Wilson removed unless he stopped advising farmers to grow durum wheat. The Secretary, it seems, sold his job, and the farmers had faith in him and continued planting durum wheat to the extent of several million additional acres each succeeding year.

Forced the Millers to Terms. "I am thinking the millers will come around to grinding durum wheat," he wheat for supplying macaroni and the concurrent establishment of a new American manufacturing industry. This feature has been a success, but macaroni, however, is not a staple food among Americans as it is in Italy, and no very great things were expected. Nevertheless, Mr. Mark Carleton, a cereal expert, was sent abroad into Russia and Turkistan to get seeds of durum wheats, and these he brought back some years ago, and the Department distributed them for trial in different parts of the country. They grew well, so well, in fact, and under such dry conditions where other wheat would not yield profitably that it was considered a shame that this splendid looking, large-grained wheat, which is moreover, rust proof, could not be made into bread. It is an unusually hard and close seeded wheat, and it was supposed to be good for only macaroni and vermicelli.

Useless, Said the Croakers.

But the Department of Agriculture is nothing if not progressive, and the cerealists began to investigate whether it might not possibly be some good as a bread maker. Dozens of experiments were made in bread making and baking—a line, you may say, somewhat out of the beaten pathway of an agricultural department—and finally it was announced by Mr. Carleton that splendid bread could be baked from this durum wheat flour—light, nutritious and sweet as a nut. A hundred loaves were baked for the Department by a Washington bakery from the durum wheat flour and a hundred other loaves from regular Minnesota flour, and then samples were sent out to a hundred different judges to determine which was the best bread. In al-of the Western desert and semi-desert land was suitable for such dry crops as durum wheat—for this wheat will make a big crop on only ten inches of rainfall—and he said, as quick as a flash:

All American Acres of Some Use. "Why, we have no useless American acres. We shall make them all productive. We have agricultural explorers in every far corner of the world, and they are finding crops which have become so acclimated to dry conditions, similar to our own in the West, that we shall in time have plants thriving upon all of our so-called arid lands." And talks with the various explorers and travelers of the Department show that the Secretary's statement is founded upon concrete facts. Already from distant and little-known quarters of the globe, and especially from the vast dry regions of Central Asia—the "Trade of the World"—where the practice of agriculture reaches far back from history into dim traditional past, have been brought forth some of the most remarkable of desert plants, which are found to require but incredibly small amounts of moisture to produce luxuriant yields.

Opens Vast New Grain Belt.

But to return to durum wheat. Mark A. Carleton, to whom Secretary Wilson sent me for "details," said this: "The durum wheat belt extends on an average the width of the United States. It includes a very large fraction of a million square miles. This remarkable wheat will grow with ten inches of rainfall and yield fifteen bushels to the acre, where ordinary wheat is an absolute failure. This is about two bushels more than the average wheat yield for the United States. "There are many other crops with as great possibilities which thrive on but slight moisture, including splendid forage plants. I might mention Kaffir corn, the sorghums, millets and broom-corn, the sorghums, millets and broom-corn, as well as new kinds of oats and barleys of wonderful drought-resisting powers, the cucumber or speltz and a long line of others.

Plenty of Food for the World.

"We are constantly finding new grains and forage plants in the Caucasus, in Algeria, in Turkistan and other dry countries which will bring under cultivation amazing areas of now waste lands."

In the face of this, what does the prediction, a few years ago, of Sir William Crookes, of England, look like, to the effect that the agricultural lands of the earth had practically reached their producing limit in grain production, and who forewarned with a short time an increasing population crying unavailingly for bread?

Fish Cannot Live in Pure Water.

By use of their gills fishes breathe the air dissolved in water. Transferred to water from which the air has been artificially driven out, or in which the air absorbed by them is not replaced, they are soon suffocated. They require aerated water to maintain life and they take it in constantly through their mouths, retaining the air and expelling the water through their gills. Should the water in a lake be completely cut off from contact with the air long enough for the fish to exhaust the supply of air, they would die. It would take a severe and long continued freeze to accomplish this, but it might happen, and in such cases has frequently happened, in a small body of water.

Unique Fishing.

Up in Wisconsin there is a disciple of Isaac Walton who has a unique way of propelling his boat and fishing at the same time. Fitted up at the stern of the boat there is a paddle wheel something on the same style as those used on the Mississippi river steamers. From this there is a rear rowing and a chain to a crank in the center of the boat. This the old man turns with one hand while with the other hand he is able to attend to his fishing line.

A Toast.

"Here's to you old pal!
May you live a thousand years
Just to keep things lively
In this vale of tears.
And may I live a thousand years
Just short one day.
For I wouldn't like to stay here
When you are gone away."

TRIED PLAYING H.O.B.O.

EXPERIMENTER FOUND THAT THE REAL H.O.B.O. HAS SOURED THE SOULS OF HUMANITY.

Connecticut Man Thought It an Easy Matter to Travel Penniless from New York to Torrington Now Realizes His Mistake.

A prosperous Connecticut man has made what he believes to be a fair test of the charity of the world, and has found it wanting. More, he has lost faith in his friends and is absolutely convinced that clothes do make the man, no matter what schools may teach or teachers preach.

William A. Gleason is his name. He was a delegate to the National Temperance Convention at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and stopping over in New York on his way home, he decided to play "hobo" for the remainder of the journey, and started out without money and dressed like a tramp.

He Had Theories.

He argued that the world is charitable. He believed that car conductors would take pity on his plight and give him "lifts"; that farmers would allow the homeless one to sleep in their barns; and that kind-hearted housewives would feed the hungry after the manner of the Good Samaritan. Now he knows better.

The first conductor he told his hard luck tale to would have thrown him off the car if he hadn't jumped. The first night out he was "turned down" by half a dozen farmers and slept hungry next to a fence. Housewives called to their dogs when he approached, and one woman—charitable soul—made him saw wood for two hours for one meal.

Friends as Bad as the Rest.

Matters got so bad at last that Gleason went out of his way to visit some of his friends who had boasted of their charity. He was sure of a warm welcome, even though they wouldn't recognize him. He found his friends were no more charitable than the rest of the world, and without exception he got from them the cold shoulder, and not cold food either.

A postmistress scowled at him when he asked for a postal note in the post office, because he was disreputable looking.

Even the Dog Misunderstood.

Even a dog that he met troubled his soul and made him wince at his hour of need. In all his journey he met but one person who was kind to him, and this was a waitress in a cheap Bridgeport restaurant, who read him a lecture on the error of his ways.

Mr. Gleason says he is glad he made the trip, but he doesn't want to try it again. The charity of the world, he has found, is not what it is cracked up to be.

IMPORTANT AFFAIRS.

In at the Finish. York Springs (Pa.) Comet: We always thought our town was finished, but we see that E. P. Breuninger is preparing to build a new barn.

Movement in Cereals. Clevecene (Wyo.) Sun: I. R. Corn, of Bile, has announced his intentions of moving to Wheatland.

What Are the Other Things.

Lebanon (Tenn.) Banner: Messrs. Joe and Avery Grambs have been running a very successful bachelors' hall on Spring street. They have company most every night and delightfully entertain them with music, cards, and other things.

Great Minnesota Tournament.

Mallard (Minn.) Call: Bessie Patton and Rog Boyce were out road riding. Blanche Boyce and Ralph Stevens were out bicycle riding. Ollie Chapman was out buggy riding last week.

A FEW AFTERTHOUGHTS.

"The dollar is less potent than formerly," declared Governor E. B. And the Washington Post hastens to reply that it is at about the time of the year that they lose their features.

It is said that each army recruit costs Uncle Sam, all told, $1,000. Missouri legislature figure.

It should be suggested that if John D. Rockefeller will fit up a laboratory for scientific research in mosquito extermination, and provide all the necessary need for experiments, a great deal will be forgiven.

London crowds have been gazing at the model of the Russian navy, which contributed by the makers of these ships and the water through their gills. Working model of the Russian navy might be displayed by junk dealers.

When the Mikado served up food while his guests ate, he handed rice. That he undoubtedly had in mind providing something in the Secretary's own class.

The Chicago man who was robbed by footpads in Berlin must have felt at home.

A young hippopotamus is on sale in New York for $25,000. If taken this time, immediate advantage should be taken of this offer, before the fall advance in prices.

Senator Burton is charged with Nepotism. Most people spell it with two syllables.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

From the New York Press. It hurts a fellow awfully to get snubbed through her open-work stockings.

A great deal of money can be made by not having private vegetable garden (How about the week-old vegetables you otherwise eat?)

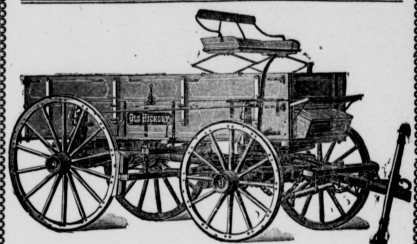

"With a good many people, having a 'pull' consists in getting for $4 something worth $2."

ECZEMA ON LITTLE GIRL

Sleepless Nights for Mother and Awful Suffering of Child.

CURED BY CUTICURA

Had Given up All Hope of Ever Making Any Cure.

Mrs. I. B. Jones, Addington, Ind. T., writes: "My little girl had been suffering for two years from eczema, and during that time I could not get a night's sleep, as her ailment was very severe. I had tried so many remedies and spent so much money, deriving no benefit. I had given up all hope of making any cure. As a last resort I was persuaded to try Cuticura, and to my great delight a marked change was manifested from the first application. I had the child a bath with Cuticura Soap, using a soft piece of muslin cloth. This I did twice a day, each time following with Cuticura Ointment, and at the same time gave the Resolvent, according to directions. One box of Ointment and two bottles of the Resolvent, together with the Soap, effected a permanent cure. I submit this for public attention, hoping it will assist other sufferers in curing themselves."

"Home Coming Week."

Did you know that the last census shows that there are over six hundred thousand Kentuckians living in other states?

Well, it's a fact!

How many of these former Kentuckians do you know?

The Commercial Club of Louisville wants the names of as many of these as it is possible to get. It desires to extend invitations to every Kentuckian who has moved away to come back next spring and attend the "Home Coming Week" festivities at Louisville.

Plans are rapidly maturing for this great event. The Commercial Club hopes to make it a red-letter week on Kentucky's historical calendar. There will be "something doing" seven days and nights and then the crowd will disperse and go to different parts of the State to remain as long as the low railroad rates are in effect, as the arrangement made with the railroads will include a low rate to all points of Kentucky for "Home Coming Week" in Louisville.

If you have any friends or relatives who have moved to other States, please send the names and addresses at once to the Commercial Club, Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. T. F. Sawyer and two little daughters, Susette and Frances, have been visiting relatives at Utility, Hancock county.

Attempt to Burn School Building.

An attempt was made last Wednesday night by unknown parties to burn the colored public school building. A quantity of new wool waste, saturated with oil, was ignited and thrown into the building through a broken window pane. Only part of the waste was consumed and just a small section of the floor burned, the small blaze started burning itself out. If the waste had been cotton, the school building would have been burned down, it is believed, and, owing to the proximity of other frame buildings, a big fire might have resulted.

Some men, it is said, slept in the building last summer, but a stop was put to this, at the beginning of school, by Geo. Adams, the principal, who fastened down a window through which they gained entrance. There is opposition, it is said, to Adams and his wife, who compose the faculty, on the part of three negro families who do not send their children to the school, and these families and the men who sleep in the building are under suspicion, it is reported.

The result of the attempt to burn the building was discovered Thursday morning.

Embryonic Tickets Only in Field.

It has been learned since mention was made in the News of a ticket, known as the Citizens' Ticket, for city council being in the field, that a number of the candidates on the ticket have refused to make the race.

The petition for the ticket, with a large list of signers, has been filed with the county clerk. If other candidates are substituted for those who have not consented to make the race, it will be necessary to have the petition resigned.

From what can be learned of the local political situation, there are one or two embryonic tickets, the petitions for which have been only slightly circulated, and the opinion of a few voters as to their desirability is being secured before a wider circulation.

Dunn-Campbell.

Mattingly, Ky., Sept. 19.—(Special.)—Felix Dunn and Miss Nannie Campbell, of Pisgah, were married last Thursday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Campbell, Rev. Charles Goff officiating. The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Campbell and is a lovely young lady. The groom is a prosperous young farmer.

Attacked by a Mob

and beaten, in a labor riot, until covered with sores, a Chicago street car conductor applied Becken's Arnica Salve, and was soon sound and well.

Mrs. O. W. Sanders, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bricker, has returned to her home at Patesville.

Miss Flora Bricker is visiting her brothers, James and Will Bricker, at Vancant, this week.

Wm. Lamb Dies in Nebraska.

The following is from the Blair (Nebr.) Courier of August 23:

"Uncle Billy" Lamb, as he was familiarly called, died at two o'clock Monday afternoon from heart trouble. He had been sick since May but did not go to bed until July 4th, since which time he gradually failed.

"He suffered a great deal, and especially during the last week but the end came peacefully while he was asleep."

"The funeral was held at the Methodist church at one o'clock this afternoon. Rev. A. J. Markley officiating. The burial services were in charge of the Masonic lodge and the body was laid to rest in the family lot in the Rose Hill cemetery."

"Wm. Lamb was born near Richmond, Va., May 3, 1826, and was therefore past 79 years of age. His family moved to Breckenridge county, Ky., when he was a small boy and there he grew to manhood."

"On Oct. 4, 1848, he was married to Miss Martha Atkinson and all but two of the family of eleven children were born in that locality. In 1860 they came to Nebraska and settled on a farm out in the Rose Hill neighborhood, where they lived for twenty-three years, moving to this city in 1882."

"Seven children are now living, all in this county except the youngest, Chas. who lives in Gage, Okla. The others are: Henry Mrs. James Ryan, Mrs. Andrew Allen, William, Mrs. W. T. Meador and Mrs. G. W. McCoy."

"Mr. Lamb was made a Mason in Breckenridge county, Ky., in 1853 and the funeral was conducted by that order. He was a member of the Presbyterian church in Kentucky but joined with the Methodist congregation at Rose Hill, and was not only a faithful and active member, but a conscientious Christian gentleman."

"He was a steward in the church for many years and was one of the trustees of the local church at the time of his death. He was an exemplary citizen, kind, generous and obliging to all, and his presence in the public and in his home no better husband and father ever lived."

"His gentle and cheering manner will be greatly missed by all who knew him, and the Courier joins in extending heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family."

"To my mind there is no remedy for catarrh comparable to Perna. It not only strikes at the root of the malady, but it tones and strengthens the system in a truly wonderful way. That has been its history in my case. I cheerfully and unhesitatingly recommend it to those afflicted as I have been."—F. S. Davidson.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Perna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.
